Synopsis :

Review "Peter Zumthor is one of the most philosophic architects working today. . . . [In] the captivatingly beautiful pages of this publication, . . . Thomas Durisch and the bibliophilic publisher Scheidegger and Spiess. . . . have taken pains to render palpable the multiple ways in which Zumthor's art moves beyond the visual. Rather than simply juxtaposing sketches, maps, and design plans with photographs of realized buildings, as is often the case with the architecture coffee-table book, these visual materials are deployed in a manner that reveals the working of the architect's imagination. . . . Each section is accompanied by well-written, translucent, somewhat rhapsodic reflections by Zumthor." (Times Literary Supplement 2016-05-04) Read more About the Author Thomas Durisch is an architect who worked at Peter Zumthor's studio from 1990–94, and has owned his own firm in Zürich since 1995. He was curator of the exhibition Peter Zumthor: Bauten und Projekte 1986–2007 at Kunsthau Bregenz in 2007.
